Purposes and Objectives

Although many graduate programs are already interdisciplinary to some extent and include the flexibility for students to meet their objectives within the existing program, it may be that a proposed area of study for an individual student cannot be effectively accommodated within a single department. When a student's knowledge base is at the interstices of two or more disciplines an individual interdisciplinary graduate program may be an appropriate response.

Notes:

- Students and supervisors are encouraged to consider interdisciplinary graduate program proposals for individuals as early in their program as possible. Any transfer normally should be made at least six months prior to candidacy for doctoral students and within the first six months of the program for a master's candidate
- Applicants to an Individualized Interdisciplinary Graduate Program for individuals should have a superior academic record with substantial background in at least one of the proposed disciplines
- Individualized Interdisciplinary Graduate Programs are restricted to thesis degree programs, master's and doctoral, and are not applicable to qualifying students
- To access the Graduate Program Manual on the web go to www.ualberta.ca/gradstudies
- The term "department" applies to both a department and to a non-departmentalized Faculty or to an exradepartmental graduate program

How to Proceed

- 1. The Individualized Interdisciplinary Graduate Program Proposal application has two parts.
 - Part I should be completed and signed by the student and delivered to the Supervisor. It is the responsibility of the applicant to develop a preliminary research proposal that both defines the focus of the research and interdisciplinary approach. Application is made through the home department/faculty.
 - Part II should be completed and signed by the supervisor in the home department and the joint-supervisor in the conjoint department. (Determination of the home & conjoint department is a decision made by the chairs and/or graduate coordinators of the departments/faculties in consultation with the student & supervisor. The department of the joint- supervisor will be designated as the conjoint department.
- 2. The department chairs/graduate coordinators from both departments should also review and sign the application.
- 3. The home department forwards the Individualized Interdisciplinary Graduate Program Proposal along with appropriate documentation (Graduate Application for Admission to the Faculty of Graduate & Postdoctoral Studies).
- GPS reviews the proposal and informs the departments and the student of the outcome.
